User Functionality of IHS Intra/Spex

An IHS Intranet Solution

Corporate security is a concern that continues to increase every day. Companies that require instant internal access for subscription data, now have a solution. How can an organization ensure that its employees utilize the most current and comprehensive information without compromising the security of its data?

Maintain Security of Your Technical Documents

IHS Intra/Spex offers the security of a corporate intranet with the functionality of an Internet application, eliminating the need for client installations and setup. Residing behind your firewall, this robust Web server application delivers data in a customer controlled environment that users access via their Web browser.

IHS Intra/Spex was designed from the ground up to create one application for delivering IHS products. Optionally, your corporate documents can be added to Intra/Spex along with your IHS subscription. It also provides powerful system administrative tools for internal access control, user information, reporting, and deployment.

The result is a fully secure, customer tailored application.

User Capabilities of IHS Intra/Spex

IHS Intra/Spex users experience the immediate benefits of accessing all subscription data within one interface – including your organization's corporate information. Users can elect to click on individual product icons to access specific product search screens, which includes: IHS Specs & Standards, ASME BPVC, API Select Standards, Petrochemical Standards Collection, and AV-DATA .

Main Search Screen

A summary of Search Statistics lists the number of results found in each product, which can then be used to access specific document details. You will be able to view abstracts, document family revisions, and contact information.

Access specific document details via a search results list.

User Functionality of IHS Intra/Spex

IHS Intra/Spex can be customized to incorporate the look and theme of your organization's Intranet, i.e. add your corporate logo, easily modify the screen background, or customize your search terms. The application also supports all languages. Your administrator sets a default language while providing individual users with the option to select their own preferred language.

Customize your interface and language.
